

ABSTRACT

An improved vehicle safety device in the form of a garment wearable on the torso of a person. The garment has a body section having a front portion and a back portion, the front portion having one or more loops or straps to which a car seat belt can be attached. The device also incorporates quick release mechanisms to allow it to be quickly and securely attached to a person and to be quickly removed in case of an emergency.